

Computer Learning & Resource Center

The Computer Learning and Resource Center is a non-profit volunteer based training center set up by Compaficare Foundation in Ghana, our primary mission is to provide Children 8 + access to education about computer technology and the Internet to enhance their lives and enable them to share their knowledge and wisdom.

Computer Learning Center instructors are dedicated to peers teaching peers in a supportive, small-class environment.

Compaficare Foundation's Computer Training and Online Study Resource Center is pleased to provide this learning opportunity for young adults and children!

These days, most of us use the Internet as our main source of information. And many libraries are putting parts of their collections online. Compaficare Foundation Learning and Resource Center helps you locate materials in Online Libraries. Once you see if a library has the title, you can click through for availability.

Volunteers Needed

The Computer Learning Center is in need of volunteer instructors and coaches, who can share their knowledge of computer hardware and software with young adults' students. An understanding of concerns and apprehensions regarding computer technology, and patience to work out problems at all skill levels is required.

Instructors should be familiar with computer hardware, and either be knowledgeable of/or capable of learning software that will be used in the curriculum. They will assume primary teaching responsibilities in the classroom, and work collaboratively with one or more coaches during the class. Coaches are required to educate themselves on curriculum and materials used in the classroom. They will assist the instructor in the teaching process.
